Major Breakthrough on Electric Storage Battery Reported

In a dispatch from Palo Alto, Calif., Tuesday the Wall Street Journal reported that Lockheed Aircraft claims a major breakthrough in electric storage battery design which makes it 10 to 100 times more powerful than today's lead-acid battery.

The new battery, developed by Lockheed Missiles & Space Co., a subsidiary of Lockheed Aircraft, uses water and a light alkali metal—either sodium or lithium. Formerly this was known only as an explosive combination, but scientists claim to have harnessed the reaction so it can produce electric power.

The implication is clear: The discovery may revive the electric automobile, whose primary handicap was the short driving distance permitted by present-day storage batteries. The standard batteries will drive an electric machine about 50 miles. Some special batteries recently developed claimed a range of 80 miles. But the Lockheed discovery presumably would give an electric car a range equal or superior to the gasoline vehicle.

All mechanically-inclined men have recognized that today's storage battery has remained virtually unchanged for a generation, still too heavy, too short-lived, and with a too-limited range for transport use.

Lockheed may have made an epochal discovery. We hope it is true.

Cost was not mentioned in the financial paper's dispatch, and this could well be the decisive factor. The old electric car ran without maintenance cost until a set of storage batteries wore out, a matter of two to four years, and then you were faced with a new battery bill that amounted to a major share of the cost of a new vehicle.

Longer battery life would help to offset any increase in manufacturing cost. But this is speculation. We are certain to hear more about this—for Lockheed's announcement is the most important that has come over the transport horizon in our generation.

It is as important as was DeForrest's invention of the tube that turned light into sound a generation ago—and made possible sound-on-film motion pictures and television.

Manslaughter Jury Picked

FORT SMITH, Ark. (AP)—A jury of eight men and four women was seated Tuesday for the trial of three Muldrow, Okla., men on charges of involuntary manslaughter in the Christmas Eve death of Mary Dobson, 16, of Lavaca.

Pros. Atty. Bill Thompson, while questioning prospective jurors, said that testimony would be unpleasant and would involve evidence of heavy drinking and sexual relations at a Fort Smith motel.

Charged are Kenneth Ray Hixson, 24; David Lee Fout, 22; and Ronnie Burt, 27.

Attorneys for both sides exhausted all their peremptory challenges and interviewed a total of 36 prospective jurors before 12 were selected to judge the case.

Hervey to Be Advanced

LITTLE ROCK (AP)—A. B. "Bud" Hervey, 44, assistant director of the state Department of Finance and Administration, is expected to be named today as acting director of the department.

Dr. Max Milam, the director, has announced his resignation, effective March 1. He has held the director's post since 1969. He is taking a job with former Gov. Winthrop Rockefeller, who named him to the director's position.

Hervey has held several jobs in the department and currently has primary supervision over tax collections and licensing.

Nixon Talks to Chou, Then Sees Exhibition

Mao Tse-tung

By FRANK CORMIER

PEKING (AP) — President Nixon and Premier Chou En-lai met for four hours today, then took Mrs. Nixon to the 18,000-seat Capital Gymnasium for an exhibition of gymnastics, table tennis and badminton.

There were a good many empty seats in the stands of the huge hall, but it was the largest crowd that has seen the President since his arrival Monday. Many schoolchildren were present. There were no introductory speeches before the skilled Chinese gymnastic teams began their two-hour exhibition.

With Chou between them and a woman interpreter just behind, the Nixons joined the crowd in enthusiastic applause for each athletic routine.

Absent tonight were China's two first ladies—Chiang Ching, Mao Tse-tung's wife, and Teng Ying-chao, Chou's wife. Both had attended the ballet performance given for the Nixons Tuesday night.

Nixon's meeting this afternoon with Chou was the third of their daily private talks and

Cost of Living Climbs But Rise Is Smaller

WASHINGTON (AP) — The cost of living climbed again in January, the second full month of Phase 2, but the rise was smaller than in December, the Labor Department announced today.

Consumer prices rose 0.1 per cent with increases for meats and new cars pushing up the over-all price level. After allowing for seasonal trends, the January bulge was 0.3 per cent, or equivalent to an inflation rate of 3.6 per year.

Since the start of the wage-price freeze in August, the index has climbed at a rate of 2.6 per cent, and in the six months preceding that it rose at an annual rate of 4.1 per cent.

Though disappointing to those who hoped for a better Phase-2 performance in holding the price line, the increase was no surprise to White House economists. They said December's 0.4 per cent increase was expected, and added that the post-freeze bulge could get worse before it got better.

The rise of 0.3 per cent in the adjusted index was equivalent to nibbling another 3 cents out of each consumer's $10 bill. The increase carried the index to 123.2 per cent of the 1967 average, which means that it cost $12.32 for the average city housewife to buy the same assortment of foods, goods and services that cost $10 in 1967.

The rise in meat prices, which has touched off consumer protests in Washington and elsewhere, was reported as 1.5 per cent in January. The increase in new car prices was 1.6 per cent.

Vocation Discussed

At Tuesday's Kiwanis Club meeting Kiwanian F. C. Crow introduced Richard S. Arnold, Texarkana Attorney, as the guest speaker.

In his opening remarks, humorously commenting on politics, Mr. Arnold said, "There's nothing wrong with a political joke unless he is elected."

The speaker chose as the title of his address, one word, "Vocation."

"Work, a four letter word is not an obscenity. It's a Virtue," he said. "It is the purpose of a Vocational Technical School such as you have in Hope, or a Vocational Technical High School that we are hoping for in Texarkana to teach the nature and importance of vocation. Vocational implies not just introduced Richard S. Arnold, another job but a specialized vocation or a "Calling."

The greatest book ever written, the Bible, uses the word Vocation or Calling many times in its pages. God called; man answered.

"God Called" may be properly applied to any useful and legal profession. Every job is equally important, and demands one's best effort to accomplish its purpose. The measure of a person's life is not length but quality."

Guests at Tuesday's meeting were George Wright, Jr., and Key Clubbers Ricky Hart, Danny Joyce, Buddy Ingram, Gary Rhodes, and David Bain.

Abandoned Vehicles Concern City

The City Board of Directors met for a regular scheduled meeting on February 22. An Ordinance was read and discussed at length concerning wrecked, dismantled, abandoned, and discarded vehicles in the city. The Ordinance that has been on the books for several years only applies to vehicles on city streets or highways. The Ordinance discussed will also cover vehicles on private property. There were a few suggested changes from the Board and it will be presented at the next meeting on March 14.

U.G. Garrett appeared before the Board requesting information regarding paving Moses Street. Mr. Medders explained the three procedures which may be followed, which are:

1. All property owners may agree to pay for the street in front of their property. This is the easiest way.
2. Property owners may form an improvement district if two-thirds of the assessed property value is represented and have cost levied against the other property owners. Cost is based on front footage.
3. Property owners may petition the City Board of Directors to pass a resolution to pave a street if 51 per cent of the assessed property values sign the petition. A public hearing is then held and if Board of Directors vote to pave the street, all property owners will be assessed their share of the cost according to front footage.

A minimum of one full block must be paved at a time. Half of a block cannot be paved. Also, both sides of a street must be paved. If certain areas are not broken up by blocks, then it is the decision of the Street Superintendent and City Manager to determine how much of the area will be paved. It must be emphasized that a minimum of one block or from one intersection to the next intersection will be

Treated Rather Well

By TOM SEPPY
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — Richard G. Kleindienst was supposed to put his head into the lion's mouth in his first confrontation with liberal senators examining his qualifications to be attorney general. The lion turned out to be more of a lamb.

The confirmation hearing on Kleindienst's nomination for attorney general was billed as an opportunity for Judiciary Committee Democrats to review the Justice Department record over the past three years, a period in which Kleindienst has been a key spokesman.

But Sens. Birch Bayh, D-Ind., and Phillip A. Hart, D-Mich., who did most of the interrogating in the opening round Tuesday, were not severely critical in their remarks.

Kleindienst, No. 2 man at the Justice Department since the start of the Nixon administration, was named by President Nixon last week to succeed John N. Mitchell who has resigned, effective March 1, to run Nixon's re-election campaign. A political conservative, Kleindienst, 48, practiced law in Phoenix before joining the administration.

Even Bayh, who said he and Kleindienst have an agreement to disagree on policy, said he thinks the Senate will confirm Kleindienst.

Kleindienst said he favors government wiretapping in national-security cases without a court order. If confirmed as attorney general, he said, "None will be authorized without my signature."

He added that he would use wiretaps in the intelligence-gathering process even if the Justice Department did not plan to seek an indictment.

Hart asked his views on the legalization of marijuana and on capital punishment.

Zoos Seeking Pandas

By ROBERT A. FASCE
Associated Press Writer

While U.S. and Chinese leaders maneuver through high level talks, American zoo directors have begun diplomatic maneuvering of their own aimed at getting the two rare giant pandas given to the United States by Premier Chou En-lai.

"There isn't a zoo in this country that wouldn't sell its soul for those pandas," says Jack Simmons, naturalist guide at Seattle's Woodland Park Zoo.

There are only four pandas in captivity outside of China—including a male in Moscow and a female in London. Efforts to mate the bear-like animals have failed. The other two pandas are in North Korea.

But Simmons and most other zoo officials contacted seem resigned to the idea that the two fuzzy, black and white gifts from the Chinese government will wind up at Washington's National Zoo.

"The National Zoo has been the repository for more than 80 years of such gifts from other nations to the United States," said Director Dr. Theodore Reed.

"I would assume we might be called upon once again in this case," he added.

But Reed stressed that there has been no official word from the White House on where the animals would be kept.

The animals were given to Nixon, who is visiting Peking, in return for two North American muskoxen Nixon is presenting to the Chinese.

Federal Court Suit Seeks to Halt Work on Steel Plant Here

TEXARKANA—A lawsuit was filed Tuesday in United States District Court for the Western District of Arkansas, Texarkana Division, by Nucor Corporation, a Delaware corporation, engaged in the steel business, which seeks to prevent the construction of a steel plant at Hope, Arkansas, for the manufacture and sale of steel joists.

Defendants named in the suit are Tennessee Forging Steel Services, Inc., which is the proposed lessee, the City of Hope, Arkansas, the proposed lessee under an Act 9 bond issue, and William White and Charles Munn, individuals, and officials of Tennessee Forging Steel Services, Inc.

The plaintiff alleges, among other things, that Munn and White are former employees, and propose to use their knowledge, trade secrets, etc., obtained while in the employment of Nucor to open the new plant at Hope, Arkansas. The suit was filed by Arnold & Arnold, a Texarkana, Arkansas, law firm. Both a preliminary and permanent injunction at 1:30 p.m. on Friday, February 25, on plaintiff's prayer for a preliminary injunction.

James H. Pilkinton, Hope city attorney, said today that he was studying the papers served on the city to determine if the suit was simply an effort to prevent competition, or had any merit. "We just received notice of this yesterday, and don't know yet what it is all about or what the position of the city and industry will be," Mr. Pilkinton said.

Asked about the hearing Friday on the request for a temporary injunction to stop construction of the Hope plant, which has already begun, Mr. Pilkinton said "Oh, on that point, we will be there all right, and will resist that effort, of course."

MACK McLARTY, J. W. ROWE, AND DAVID PRYOR

Some 400 persons from a 16 county area was at Red River Vocational Technical School today for a rural life conference. The purpose of the meeting is to inform people of services and resources available for improving family living and to discuss problems facing rural people.

Congressman David Pryor, Camden, who Saturday announced his candidacy for the U.S. Senate, was keynote speaker for the morning session. Mr. Pryor discussed improved jobs and industry. Mr. Pryor was introduced by State Representative Mack McLarty.

Earnest Whitelaw, director, SW Arkansas Planning and Development District, Inc., of Magnolia, was the afternoon speaker.

A Human and Natural Resource panel headed by Mrs. Betsy Pope, supervisor, Family Planning, St. Francis County

Health Center, Forrest City, discussed nutrition, education, food production and pollution. There were representatives from Clark, Columbia, Dallas, Union counties.

IRA Leader Held in British Base Blast

By NOEL HUGHES
Associated Press Writer
LONDON (AP) — A leader of the outlawed Irish Republican Army was arrested in Dublin early today as police in Britain hunted an IRA revenge squad that bombed an army base near London.

The blast at the Aldershot headquarters of Britain's 16th Parachute Brigade killed seven persons—five waitresses, a gardener and a Roman Catholic chaplain recently decorated for bravery in Northern Ireland. An estimated 100 pounds of gelignite blew them to pieces. Seventeen persons were injured.

The IRA's leftist Official wing, assuming responsibility, said the bombing was in retaliation for the deaths of 13 Catholics in clashes with paratroopers of the 16th Brigade during Londonderry's "Bloody Sunday" on Jan. 30.

As British police sealed highways and checked planes and ships leaving the country, Irish detectives arrested Catholic Goulding, Marxist chief of staff of the IRA Officials.

Goulding, a 49-year-old housepainter, was one of four men seized in a series of post-midnight raids in Dublin and its suburbs.

The other three men were members of Sinn Fein, the IRA's political section, including general secretary Tony Heffernan. All were held under the Offenses Against the State Act which permits authorities to detain any person for 48 hours without charge.

The arrests set off speculation that Prime Minister Jack Lynch of Ireland has launched a promised crackdown on the IRA, which is waging guerrilla warfare to oust the British from Protestant-dominated Northern Ireland.

Lynch, who shares the IRA's aim of uniting Ireland but is against the use of force to achieve it, denounced the Aldershot bombing as "cowardly and senseless."

British detectives checked the homes of known IRA sympathizers in London, Birmingham and Manchester.

Bitter Senate Battle Is Expected on Busing Issue

By JOE HALL
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate today heads into what is expected to be a bitter floor fight over proposals to ban busing of school children to achieve racial integration.

Under consideration is a $23-billion higher-education bill to which the House has tied a $1.5-billion school-desegregation fund asked by President Nixon.

The House tacked onto the $1.5-billion measure three anti-busing amendments. Southern Democratic senators plan to use the same bill as the basis for their own proposals aimed at federal court-ordered busing.

But several of the strongest foes of court-ordered busing have said they do not believe any such legislative enactments will be effective.

They said the courts have ruled consistently that the equal-protection clause of the 14th Amendment overrides legislative bans on busing. Thus, they say, the only solution is a constitutional amendment.

The $23 billion would provide annual grants up to $1,400 to college students from low-income families, continuation of present work-study and loan programs for students, and increased institutional support to colleges and universities.

The Senate is considering the bill under an agreement which will bring a final vote a week from today. Two hours will be allowed on each of 35 amendments, many of which deal with busing.

Antibusing amendments were defeated when the Senate first considered its version of the $1.5-billion school-desegregation measure last April.

But the issue has become much hotter since then, particularly in view of the recent federal court order that school districts in two adjoining counties must be combined with schools in Richmond, Va., city for desegregation purposes.

The two Senate leaders, Democrat Mike Mansfield and Republican Hugh Scott, are working on a plan which Senate liberals are expected to rally behind. This is expected to permit some busing under stringent conditions.

Liberals contend school segregation cannot be ended without some busing.

Sen. Claiborne Pell, D-R.I., floor manager for the bill, asked in opening debate on the legislation that his colleagues pass the version worked out in the Senate Labor Committee in December. This version knocked off the three House antibusing riders but contained a provision stating that nothing in the act shall be construed to require busing of pupils in order to overcome racial imbalance.

This language, included in several previous laws, allows court-ordered busing held necessary to carry out the desegregation required by the Constitution.

Equal Employment Bill Passes Senate

By JOHN CHADWICK
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate has passed a bill providing enforcement authority for the federal ban on job discrimination based on race, religion, sex or national origin.

In an unusual procedure made necessary by the die-hard resistance of two Southern opponents, the Senate actually passed the identical bill twice Tuesday by votes of 73 to 16 and 72 to 17.

The effect of the double vote, forced by Sens. Sam J. Ervin Jr., D-N.C., and James B. Allen, D-Ala., may be to complicate further action on the legislation in the House, which passed a companion bill last September.

The Senate version of the measure is more to the liking of civil-rights forces, even though it is a compromise of the original bill brought up for debate on Jan. 19.

It provides new powers to enforce the prohibition against discriminatory job practices written into the 1964 Civil Rights Act and also extends coverage to additional millions of employees, including those of state and local governments.

Senate passage followed quickly after a 73-21 vote, 10 more than the required two-thirds majority, ended debate on the bill.

On the first passage vote, 38 Democrats and 35 Republicans voted for the bill and 10 Democrats and six Republicans voted against it.

The second vote was identical.

except that Sen. James L. Buckley, R-Con.-N.Y., switched and voted against passage.

The major issue in the long Senate fight over the bill was the type of enforcement.

The original Senate bill would have armed the Equal Employment Opportunity Commission, now limited to seeking voluntary compliance, with power to issue cease-and-desist orders against employers and labor unions.

In the end, the Senate knocked this out of the bill and voted—as the House had—to require the EEOC to bring suits in the federal courts to enforce its findings. Adoption of this amendment made it possible to muster the two-thirds majority necessary to cut off debate.

Another compromise was in the extension of coverage. The original bill would have brought businesses and labor unions with as few as eight employees or members under the law, instead of 25 as at present. As finally passed by the Senate, coverage is provided for those with 15 or more.

Purcell May Run for Congress

By ROBERT SHAW
Associated Press Writer
LITTLE ROCK (AP) — Former Atty. Gen. Joe Purcell, chairman of the state Democratic party, is reported to be looking closely at the possibility of running for Congress in the 4th District.

Purcell does not live in the district—he practices law at the Saline County seat of Benton in Congressman Wilbur D. Mills' 2nd District—but there is no residence requirement that would prevent him from stepping across the line to run in the 4th.

Aside from that, sources who said Purcell had the congressional race under consideration observed that he has had close ties with the region—he is a native of the area—and that Saline County would still be in the 4th District but for the 1971 apportionment that shifted to Mills' constituency.

There also is the matter of Purcell's popularity in the district.

He ran first or second in all but two of the counties of the district in finishing third statewide in the 1970 Democratic gubernatorial primary.

The 4th District incumbent, Rep. David Pryor, has chosen to try to unseat veteran Sen. John L. McClellan in the Democratic primary this year. Already, three persons—Atty. Gen. Ray Thornton, Richard S. Arnold of Texarkana and Jack Coleman of McGehee—have announced for Pryor's House position.

Purcell would not discuss Tuesday the possibility of his running for any office this year, but said that he has been in politics all his life "and I have never placed myself in a position of ruling out anything."

"I don't have any definite plans at this time," he said. "The first thing I would do if I developed any plans would be to resign as chairman of the party. I don't think the chairman of the Democratic party should be involved actively in seeking any political office."

He said the 4th District had great potential for development and that "the key to development is strong political leadership—leaders that understand the people and that can be effective."

Purcell acknowledged that there was no prohibition against his residing in the 2nd District and running in the 4th. "But anyone who represents that district should be a resident of the district," he said. "Any person who is not a resident and is elected to that office—it is my thinking—should move into the district."

Purcell was reported to have considered running for Congress in the 4th District in 1966, the year he was elected to the first of his two terms as attorney general and in which Pryor won his House seat.

Purcell chose in 1970 to give up the attorney general's job to run for governor. By a narrow margin, Dale Bumpers edged Purcell for a runoff berth against former Gov. Orval E. Faubus and then went on to capture the governor's office by defeating the Republican incumbent, Winthrop Rockefeller.

Bumpers chose Purcell to serve as party chairman. That job, his law practice and his efforts in behalf of Mills' presidential candidacy have consumed his time since.

Welfare Ruling Held Invalid

LITTLE ROCK (AP)—A controversial state welfare regulation was held "invalid and unenforceable" Tuesday by Judge G. Thomas Eisele in U.S. District Court.

The regulation prohibited welfare aid to children under the age of 18 who are not in school. The aid is issued under the Aid to Families with Dependent Children (AFDC) program.

Eisele ruled in a lawsuit brought last May by the Arkansas Community Organizations for Reform Now, better known as ACORN. The suit said the regulation was unconstitutional.

The program is administered under the state Department of Social and Rehabilitative Services with funds provided chiefly by the federal Congress. ACORN said Congress never stipulated that children under age 18 had to be in school to receive such funds.

Eisele, in a memorandum opinion, pointed out that a U.S. Supreme Court decision in a similar case from Illinois last year said the states had "no option to tailor eligibility standards within the age group and thus exclude children eligible under the federal standards."

In a meeting Jan. 27, the state Social Services Board had voted to continue to enforce the regulation until the end of the school year or until the ruling was declared invalid by the courts.

Dalton Jennings, state social services director, said after the ruling Tuesday that the decision would not be appealed.

He said that some of the board members thought the regulation defeated the interests of good education under some circumstances and that the board had wanted to continue the regulation to encourage young people to obtain an education.

But, Jennings said, "Some children, if the department insisted on staying in school, might have disrupted school because they were not motivated in getting an education, but only in receiving the welfare grants."

The ruling could not have gone any other way in light of the Supreme Court decision, Jennings said.

Sees a New Development

LITTLE ROCK (AP)—Sen. John L. McClellan, D-Ark., said Tuesday that he expected an announcement soon, possibly today, concerning the creation of a Mid-South Regional Economic Development and Planning Commission.

Funds for such a commission have been held up twice by the Nixon administration, but McClellan said recently he had been assured by White House representatives that some funds would be released for the proposed commission.

The commission would include some counties in Tennessee and Mississippi and 31 counties in Arkansas. The 31 are not included in the Ozarks Regional Commission, which covers 44 Arkansas counties as well as portions of Oklahoma, Kansas and Missouri.

McClellan said a Mid-South commission could provide a means for development of north-south highways through the state.

Labor Fears Wallace in Florida

By NEIL GILBRIDE
AP Labor Writer
MIAMI BEACH (AP) — Organized labor fears a George C. Wallace victory in the Florida Democratic presidential primary and is mounting a special drive to persuade union members to vote against the Alabama governor.

"He's a bigot, a racist and he's antilabor right down to the soles of his feet," grumbled AFL-CIO President George Meany.

"I think Wallace might take Florida," Al Barkan, chief political strategist for the big labor federation, said in an interview Tuesday.

Barkan's Committee on Political Education has set up a special task force to work against Wallace's bid for the March 14 Florida primary and in other state primaries later.

Wallace, appealing for labor votes, so far is ignoring the criticism from big labor.

"I don't even want to answer it," Wallace said of Meany's verbal attack. "It doesn't deserve an answer."

AFL-CIO leaders view Wallace largely as a spoiler whose inroads into the labor vote will work against the Democratic nominee and help re-elect President Nixon.

Barkan's political committee cites relatively lower wages, unemployment insurance and other labor benefits in Alabama in urging workers to vote against Wallace.

In addition to mailing out literature criticizing Wallace's record on labor and racial matters, COPE is planning a special film on Wallace to be shown at union meetings.

"We are telling our members that they would be throwing their votes away in voting for Wallace and, even worse, helping re-elect President Nixon whom they strongly indicate they oppose," said James Kennedy, head of the three-man COPE task force working against Wallace.

lasted a bit longer than their meeting Tuesday. Nixon said before he arrived that he expected these sessions to last two hours, and their extended length was taken as an indication that the two leaders were making a searching examination of a wide range of issues.

At the outset of the meeting today, Chou dropped what could be a hint that some U.S. newsmen may be allowed to stay on after Nixon leaves.

"If the press wants to see any more places, they can apply to the Department of Information," Chou remarked to the American reporters and photographers as he sat down with Nixon for their third private conference.

"You don't have much time here," the premier added.

Chou's remarks sent many of the 87 visiting journalists to the Information Department, seeking permission to remain after Nixon leaves China next Monday. These newsmen interpreted Chou's reference to the seven-day limit on their visit and their three-city itinerary as a hint that his government might be prepared to let some of them stay on for a wider look.

Rep. Dowdy, Texas, Sentenced, Fined

BALTIMORE, Md. (AP) — Rep. John V. Dowdy, D-Tex., was sentenced to 18 months imprisonment and fined $25,000 Wednesday in his bribery conspiracy conviction.

Sentencing was imposed by Judge Roszel C. Thomsen in U.S. District Court where the Texas Democrat's eight-week long jury trial was conducted.

Dowdy's lawyers said he would appeal the sentence and fine.

Stephen Sachs, the former U.S. attorney who was retained as a special prosecutor to handle the Dowdy trial, said before sentencing that one of the most refreshing things about the verdict was that "it tore away the mark of hypocrisy and sham" that surrounded the congressman who posed as a careful legislator.

The legislator was convicted last Dec. 30 in federal court of a $25,000 bribery conspiracy scheme for blocking a Justice Department probe of a Maryland home improvements business.

The 10-term representative was the first sitting congressman convicted in 15 years.

Rep. Thomas J. Lane, D-Mass., was convicted in 1956 on income tax evasion, fined $10,000 and sentenced to four months imprisonment.

Dowdy's lawyers previously filed motions for acquittal and a new trial. They listed 19 reasons why the verdict should be set aside and a new trial granted.

The maximum sentence on all eight counts which the congressman was convicted of could have brought 40 years in prison and $40,000 in fines.

Dowdy was accused of two counts of bribery conspiracy, one count of causing interstate transportation of a bribe and five counts of lying to the grand jury in Baltimore.

The motion listed six points on tape recordings in Dowdy's Washington office with Nathan H. Cohen, the Baltimore businessman who operated the now-defunct Monarch Construction Corp. in Silver Spring, the firm under federal investigation in the early 1960s.

The motion said the court erred in signing an electronic recording warrant and admitting the recordings into evidence.

Cohen, Julius Levitt and Myrvin C. Clark, the former Monarch employees who said they passed the $25,000 in a briefcase to the 19-year House veteran from Athens, were key prosecution witnesses.

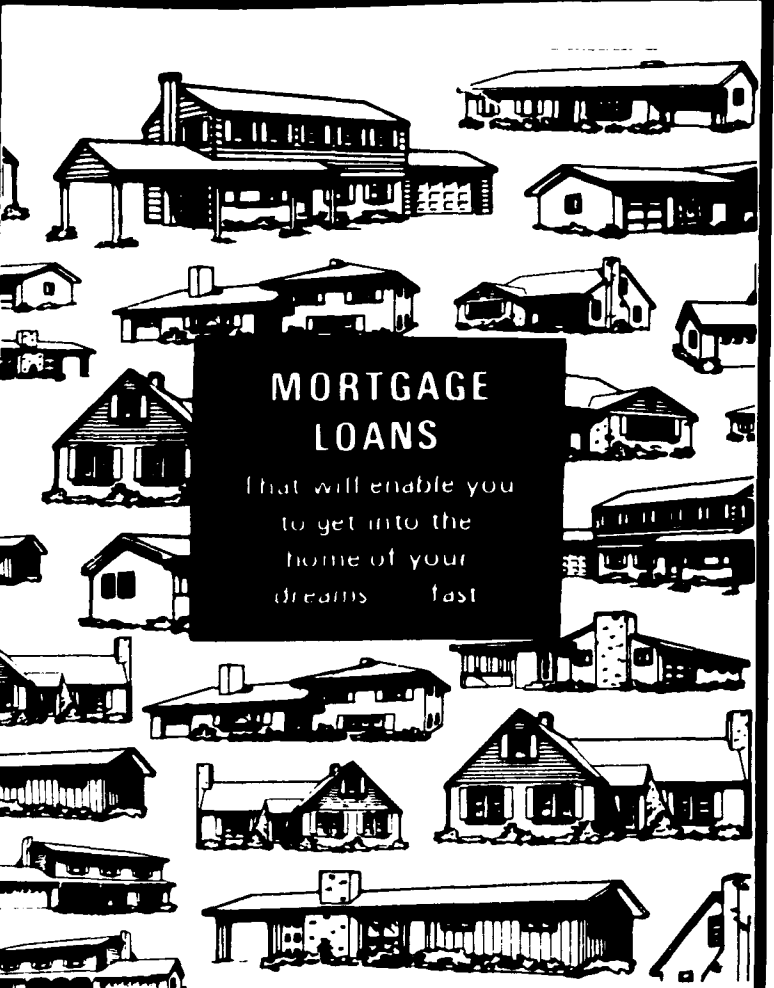

The briefcase was passed to Dowdy at Atlanta, Ga., airport Sept. 22, 1965 where he stopped while en route to a speaking engagement, testimony during the eight-week trial indicated.

Dowdy was indicted in March, 1970 but trial did not begin until more than a year later, Nov. 8, 1971, because of his health problems.

Service Tradition Due for a Shakeup

WASHINGTON (AP) — Secretary of Defense Melvin R. Laird, moving to shake up traditional service roles, foresees the day when Air Force planes will fly from Navy aircraft carriers.

This is one of Laird's long-range ideas for giving the Air Force a share in control of the seas, which always has been a Navy mission.

Asked how the Navy would react, Laird told an interviewer he believes Adm. Elmo R. Zumwalt Jr., chief of naval operations, would "go along with sharing his carriers with the Air Force."

But one Air Force general reacted explosively, saying "we're not going to become tailhookers." Tailhooker is the nickname for carrier pilots.

Such a development as Laird envisions would require that Air Force fliers be trained to land and take off from carrier decks.

Although Air Force officers recoil at the idea of flying from aircraft carriers, they claim they can handle sea-control patrols from strategically located land bases in such places as the Azores, Newfoundland, Iceland and Greenland.

In his annual report to Congress last week, Laird spoke for the first time of the need for "a new order of service partnership" and for "the courage to look anew at parochial and outdated roles and missions assignments."

Laird plans to stay on as secretary of Defense for perhaps another year, so his successor probably would inherit the burden of pushing through any revolutionary changes in service roles over objections of admirals and generals.

Denying he has any intention to blur service identities, Laird said with a smile: "I'm not going to put them into the same uniform."

Laird said he was offering various ideas "to get the services thinking" about closer cooperation as the U.S. armed forces are being reduced to their lowest strength in more than 20 years.

Among other things, Laird said, the Air Force's F111 fighter bombers could be used against Soviet naval units in such areas as the Mediterranean, the Caribbean and the North Sea.

"The Air Force has developed tactics and has updated training manuals for ship attacks," Laird said.

Television and Radio

By CYNTHIA LOWRY
AP Television-Radio Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — "Man of the Serengeti," latest in CBS' National Geographic series, was an hour-long lecture Tuesday night on the ecological chain, the survival of the fittest and another indictment of man the destroyer.

The violent program showed animals hunting and eating their prey—a leopard dragging a wild beast up a tree; lions fighting over their still-alive catch; a wart hog set upon by a pack of wild dogs. All this was to demonstrate the chain of life and survival.

In addition, there was a description of the life of the Masai, a milk-drinking tribe of nomad herdsmen who are not hunters, according to the principal narrator, a Masai who is a ranger in the African animal preserve.

The narration seemed to be making one point while the film and its sound track were making another, and more savage, one.

"Kung Fu," ABC's "Movie of the Week," was one of the most interesting and off-beat programs to come along recently.

Despite an unfortunate title that suggested Fu Manchu and sinister Orientals of old-fashioned melodrama, this was the story of a Chinese priest, highly trained in survival techniques, fleeing to the American West of the 1880s. He was wanted in China for killing a member of the imperial family.

The story centered an enslaved coolie gang putting through a railroad. Caine, the monk on the run, encountered assorted white bad guys, championed and liberated the Chinese laborers and went on his way. David Carradine as the priest was laconic and grave.

The 90 minutes appeared to be a pilot for a series and the idea of an Oriental man-on-the-run in the Old West is novel and provocative, although they may find scripts with a little love interest hard to come by.

NBC's "Today" show matches in time and mood the visual news coming out of Peking during the presidential visit. On Tuesday morning, the news was a ballet with a revolutionary theme which President Nixon, his party and the wife of Mao Tse-tung were attending. That 13-hour time difference between the Far East and the East Coast of the United States doesn't help the evening news programs one bit.

The TV news corps is getting mostly feature material in Peking. Mrs. Nixon, visiting a hotel kitchen, received extraordinary attention looking at pastries.

CORONA, Calif. (AP) — Tipped by telephone that a "large narcotics party" was under way sheriff's deputies crept up to the site in the foothills.

When the deputies had the encampment surrounded, Deputy Gary Davidson sneaked forward.

He found 50 Boy Scouts camped for the night. He apologized.

The boys accompanied the deputies' departure with a traditional Scout chant.

Miss Williams Feted
Miss Mary Nell Williams was feted with parties on Friday and Saturday of last week. On Friday, February 18 a linen shower was given at the home of Mrs. William Morris with Mrs. Gary Thrasher, co-hostess.

Miss Williams wore a pink dress and had a white carnation corsage. Similar flowers were presented to her mother, Mrs. Ferrell Williams, and her grandmother, Mrs. N.U. Cassidy. From a table covered with a red cloth and centered with red carnations, cake, nuts and punch were served to 13. Out-of-town guests were Miss Paddie Trick and Miss Penny Ingram, both of Texarkana.

On Saturday, February 19 Mrs. Carroll Beck's home was the setting for a rice bag party honoring Miss Williams. Miss Kay Coleman was co-hostess at the home that was decorated with yellow jonquils.

For the informal entertainment the bride-elect wore a blue and white pantsuit and had a rice bag corsage. Nine friends made rice bags to be distributed at the reception, and cookies and cold drinks were served for refreshments. The hostesses presented the honoree a Corningware teapot.

Mr. and Mrs. George Clippert of Camden and Miss Nancy Clippert and Dick Broach, both of Little Rock, were luncheon guests of Mr. and Mrs. R.L. Broach Sunday in Hope.

Exotic Dancers Help the Thaw

BALTIMORE (AP) — Exotic dancers of The Block nightclub district helped thaw an icebound city by raising more than $4,000 for Variety Club charities.

"We're still counting" money taken in at the Bursk-A-Thon last weekend, sponsors said. The girls—who came from Block nightclubs and as far away as Boston—shook out more than $4,000 in a grinding 10½ hours of shimmying at a 190-seat theater.

A spokesman said the money will be used to buy a small bus for trips by handicapped children, and it probably will be dedicated to the girls on The Block.

Elinor Ross is an American-born, American-trained dramatic soprano. Her initial appearances for the Metropolitan Opera were right out of movie scripts... the understudy, so to speak, waiting in the wings steps in for the star and... Her first "sub" role was for Birgit Nilsson in Puccini's "Turandot." Next she stepped in for Regine Crespin in "Tosca." A favorite in Italian opera houses, Elinor Ross started her career in Tampa, Fla., and sang for school assemblies and churches. At though she still enjoys preparing Cuban foods learned in Ybor City (Tampa) for her teen-age son and watches her diet, she loves Italian dishes. One of her favorites is Zucchini con Pasta.

REV NORRIS STEELE AND FAY JAMES

Fay James has been making and selling peanut brittle and chili with the proceeds going toward the building fund for the new First United Methodist Church.

When Mrs. Doris Beaird, twin sister of Rev. Steele, heard about Fay and his projects, she sent a 100 pound sack of shelled peanuts to him.

The peanut brittle is packaged and sells for $1.00 pound. The chili is packaged in plastic sealed bags in one, two and three serving sizes.

Both peanut brittle and chili is kept at James Cleaners and Fay says if he is out, he'll take orders.

Questions, Answers About SS

Social Security Administration
P.O. Box 1319
Texarkana, Texas 75501

Q. I became 65 in August of 1970. I did not sign up for medical insurance then, and understand I missed another chance earlier this year. Will I have another opportunity to apply?

A. Yes. The present general enrollment period began January, 1972 and will end March 31, 1972. Call your local Social Security Office during that time and they will furnish you the necessary forms.

Q. I am 65 and have never worked under social security. I do have the medical insurance coverage. My doctor advised me that I need surgery and hospitalization. My husband is 63 years old but still working. Can I get hospital insurance now under his social security number?

A. Yes. Even though your husband is not retired and not yet 65, he can file for social security to provide you with hospital coverage. Call your local Social Security Office and explain your situation.

Q. I shall become 65 soon, but do not plan to quit working. Must I retire in order to have Medicare protection?

A. No. You can use your Medicare coverage even though you continue to work and may not be entitled to monthly social security benefits. Contact your Social Security Office one to three months before the month you become 65. It's possible you can handle everything by telephone.

Q. Will medical insurance help to pay my drug bills?

A. No Part "B" of Medicare (Medical insurance) does not provide coverage for drugs; however, it will help pay for some drugs that are not self-administered.

Do Your Own Jewelry

Another tip for do-it-yourself jewelry makers. Try saving those tiny flowers, leaves and shells and enclosing them with a clear plastic that can be poured into molds for different shapes. Check hobby shops for the special plastic.

4 tablespoons olive oil
1 pound ground round beef

1½ slices bread—torn apart
5 fresh green onions—chopped

Heat 3 tablespoons olive oil in deep skillet. Sauté 3 mashed garlic cloves. Then sauté chopped onions until translucent. Add tomatoes. Cook uncovered until sauce becomes thick. Add salt and freshly ground pepper to taste. Add chopped zucchini and cook until tender over low flame. Add oregano. Meanwhile, heat water to boiling point for macaroni.

Speak for Yourself, John

DEAR HELEN:

I'm almost 50 and unmarried. I have a nice farm and a good income. I've known this young woman a long time. In fact, I guess I loved her even before her disastrous marriage, which ended in divorce a year ago.

Her children come to the farm and ride in my snowmobile. We get along great. She is over here a lot—as a friend. I take them all to shows and other outings. But—she is 18 years younger than me.

Now another man shows up. He is at her house a lot, but the kids dislike him. He doesn't take her places—just eats and watches television at her expense. He pays child support, and I don't think he has marriage in mind, as his former wife takes about half his earnings.

I don't stop by any more, as I don't want to interfere, but her children spend more and more time at my farm.

Should I just drop out of the picture? I hate to hurt the kids, but they will forget. —CALL ME JOHN

DEAR JOHN:
For Pete's sake: FIGHT for what you want. A woman can love an older man, but she can't throw herself at him if he insists on dropping out of the picture. Leave off the father image and go courtin', John! —H.

DEAR HELEN:
You took "Fighting Mad's" side on church bells not being noise pollutants. Evidently you haven't lived directly across the street from a church.

Each Sunday I count some 100 loud clangs, and with a small baby, they can be a headache. A mile away they sound lovely BUT when you're within 80 feet of those bells, they're just two heavy pieces of iron jarring your eardrums. —JEAN

DEAR HELEN:

I am a 76-year-old man. I got sick and went to the hospital. My son in another state said he'd move to his home, so he came and loaded all my belongings on a truck—then sold them to a second-hand dealer.

Then he forged my name on a couple of my social security checks, saying it was to pay for my room and board—and then he left me in a convalescent home that is paid for by Medicare.

He got away with about $600 from the sale of my furniture, plus the checks, and I haven't seen him since. He even sold three of my suits and most of my other clothes.

I hate to bring charges against my own son, but how else can I get my money back? I'll need it to live on when I get out of this place. —FATHER OF A GOOD CHRISTIAN SON—HE SAYS

DEAR FATHER:
Your son may return the money without a lawsuit if you remind him that forging a name on government checks can get him five-to-ten—and proof won't be difficult, with the help of a lawyer.

If he doesn't fork over, then call your local Legal Aid Society. This cheat doesn't deserve a father's protection! —H.

DEAR HELEN:
You receive many letters from people near suicide, it seems. Won't you please tell your readers, Helen, that Suicide Prevention Centers exist in almost every community. They provide 24-hour telephone service and any person may call, any time, to speak with trained personnel. The number is in the phone book. —THE MARIN SUICIDE PREVENTION CENTER

DEAR READERS:
Most larger cities not only have suicide prevention centers, but other "crisis lines" open to troubled people. If you can't find the number in the book, Directory Assistance will help you. —H.

By Oswald & James Jacoby

The ordinary bridge player has no trouble making six spades. He wins the diamond opening; plays a couple of rounds of trumps and notes with mild displeasure that they have failed to break. Therefore he runs some more trumps; enters dummy with the king of clubs; takes the heart finesse and claims the slam when it works.

This line of play gave him a 50 per cent chance since a finesse is an even money proposition.

The expert knows a better line of play. It doesn't work, but it is a better line. He cashes just the ace and queen of trumps. Then he leads a low club and ducks it to East's ten. East leads back a heart and expert South refuses the finesse. Then he leads a second club to dummy's king. His plan is to lead a low club next and ruff it. Then he will enter dummy with the king of trumps and discard two hearts on the last two clubs.

A fine idea, but East ruffs that club and takes his king of hearts. Expert South is down two tricks.

Why was the losing line the expert adopted superior to the winning one? We have already pointed out that the finesse was a 50 per cent play.

The expert was going to make his contract provided clubs broke either 3-3 or 4-2. A suit will break that well some 84 per cent of the time. Thus the losing play had an 84 per cent chance of success. It didn't work, but percentages work fine in the long run.

Mustangs Back on Winning Side

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
"Be it ever so humble" and all that jazz, home was really sweet to the Southern Methodist Mustangs today.
The Mustangs roundly defeated Texas Tech's Red Raiders 87-73 Tuesday night at Moody Coliseum in a battle involving two of the three teams which were tied for the Southwest Conference basketball lead prior to the contest.
In other action, Texas slipped past Arkansas 92-86, Texas Christian raced by Rice 75-68 and Texas A&M beat Baylor 101-95.
"It was a big win for us after two losses," said a relieved SMU coach Bob Prewitt.
Not long ago, the Methodists were the envy of the conference with a two-game lead over the rest of the pack. Then a disastrous road trip cost them the two losses to which Prewitt referred.

"I thought our overall hustle was a big factor," he said of the victory, which left SMU in a two-way tie for first place with Texas A&M with three league games remaining.
Nit without credit was the Mustangs' performance at the charity line, which provided 33 of their 87 points. Ruben Triplett hit 14 free throws and was the game's leading scorer with 28, while Tech's record-breaking point machine, Greg Lowery, sputtered to 11 points on a poor shooting night from the field.
"We couldn't keep a drive going—we'd start rolling and they would stop us," lamented Tech coach Gerald Myers.
Meanwhile, A&M was stumbling past Baylor in Waco in overtime. The high man for the Aggies was Jeff Overhouse with 22, while Baylor's Tom Stanton netted 27.

The Aggies and SMU have identical 8-3 conference records, while Tech, TCU and Texas are one game back at 7-4.
Clutch foul shooting by Harry Larrabee pushed Texas past a dangerous Arkansas team at Fayetteville in another overtime contest. He recorded six successful charity tosses in a 35-second span.
Texas Christian remained in contention to repeat as league champion, but to do so, the Frogs had to win their first Southwest Conference game in Houston since 1966. The loss dropped Rice to 0-11 in the conference.

Condors Can't Get Crowd

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
The Pittsburgh Condors have been finding it difficult to attract more than perhaps 2,000 people to their 12,939-seat home arena.
So on Tuesday night the American Basketball Association club decided to try out a new site—Tucson, Ariz.
The result? They attracted 2,000 fans.
The 1,800-mile trip wasn't entirely wasted, though, as the Condors rallied in the final minutes to beat the Dallas Chaparrals 112-105. In the only other ABA contest, Denver defeated Virginia 121-105.
When you're No. 2 you try harder—but when you're No. 6 and last in the East Division, you can't expect the fans to stampede their way to see you, especially when you're playing No. 3 in the West.
That's what the Condors faced in the game against the Chaps—but local promoters, testing out Tucson's pro basketball potential, said they weren't disheartened and added they will try to host Pittsburgh's final game of the season, March 28 against Kentucky.
The Condors were unable to seal their victory against Dallas until George Thompson scored a field goal and foul shot in the final minute. Thompson scored 32 points for Pittsburgh, while Donnie Freeman of the Chaps led everyone with 36.
The Squires trailed Denver by just 54-53 at the half before Byron Beck and rookie Marv Roberts, finishing with 21 points apiece, put together a second-half effort that made the Rockets easy winners. Charlie Scott of Virginia topped all scorers with 31 points.

Anderson, Lane Swapped by Packers, Cardinals

GREEN BAY, Wis. (AP) — Donny Anderson, the Green Bay Packers' "Golden Palomino" who signed for an estimated $600,000 six years ago, said Tuesday his troubles that ultimately led to his departure from the team stemmed from a 1971 contract dispute.
Anderson, whose 3,061 yards rushing is fifth on the Packers' all-time list but who was shunted to the background last year by rookie John Brockington, went to the St. Louis Cardinals for running back MacArthur Lane in a straight player swap.
Anderson said in Lubbock, Tex., he was "very excited," adding that Packer coach and general manager Dan Devine had called him earlier to inform him of the trade.
Anderson, who never signed a 1971 contract but insisted he had not intended to play out his option, said his problems with Devine originated over the contract.
Devine had no comment on his reasons for trading Anderson.
The 6-foot-1, 220 pound Lane, at 29 a year older than Anderson, presented a similar case. Like Anderson, he had his best season in 1970, rushing for 977 yards and scoring 15 touchdowns. Anderson's figures that year were 853 yards rushing and 414 catching passes.
Lane slumped to 502 yards rushing last season and was suspended for the final game after publicly criticizing St. Louis vice president William V. Bidwill in a salary dispute.

Free Tosses Let Texas Beat Hogs

FAYETTEVILLE, Ark. (AP) —Arkansas led by 11 at one point in the second half, but six points by Harry Larrabee on free throws proved the difference in a 92-86 Texas victory over the Razorbacks in overtime here Tuesday night.
Cruising in front with 14:24 to play, the Razorbacks let the margin slip away and, with 12 seconds left in regulation play, B. G. Brostherous hit both ends of the key.
Arkansas led by two, 86-84, with 1:46 left when Dean Tolson got both ends of a one-and-one, but then Texas tied it on a lay-up by Larry Robinson.
At that point, Larrabee began to draw fouls and within a 35 second span he put in six points from the free-throw line.
The victory left Arkansas with a 3-8 SWC record and 6-17 over-all. Texas came out of the game with a 7-4 league mark and a 14-7 record for the season.

Shot Fired in Hockey War

DETROIT (AP) — The first shot has been fired in the so-far undeclared war between the World Hockey Association and National Hockey League, and it was a direct hit in Toronto.
Bernie Parent, the young Maple Leaf goalie, acknowledged Tuesday that he would jump to the fledgling WHA next season for a guaranteed $750,000 contract that will be paid even if his new team, the Miami Screaming Eagles, or even the whole league never gets off the ground.
"Anyone would be stupid if he'd get an offer like this and turn it down," said Parent, who sat out Toronto's 5-4 loss against Detroit Tuesday night.
"At my present salary, it would take me 10-15 years to make the kind of money I'm going to make with Miami. Even if this new league doesn't get started, I'm going to get my money and that's all I care about."
Parent said he would finish the current season with the Maple Leafs "if they want me." He said he had not heard from anyone in the Toronto organization but had heard some of the comments they made.
"Harold Ballard (president of the Leafs) said that if I'm going to make this much money in the WHA, he wasn't going to interfere."
The contract with the Screaming Eagles covers five years.
Parent is the first player to jump from the established NHL to the new league. Steve Arnold, personnel director for the WHA, indicated that more would follow but said he hoped there would be no more announcements until the season is over.
Arnold said the WHA has contacted "a maximum of 10 players" among those drafted to form the new league.

Top Hurlers Absent From Camps

By BRUCE LOWITT
Associated Press Sports Writer
The winningest pitchers in the American League last season? Mickey Lolich and Vida Blue. Two of the top absentees in American League training camps this season?
Mickey Lolich and Vida Blue. Detroit General Manager Jim Campbell says he believes both the length of the contract and the amount of money in it are delaying the signing of Lolich, the Tigers' 25-game winner.
But money alone apparently is what is keeping Blue, the league's Most Valuable Player and Cy Young Award winner, from signing an Oakland pact.
Lolich reportedly wants a three-year contract, while the Tigers' policy calls for single-year pacts. One source says both sides are close to $80,000 in the current talks.

But Blue and his boss, A's owner Charles O. Finley, are apparently nowhere near as close in their haggling.
The fireballing left-hander made less than $15,000 last year when he won 24 games. That prompted President Nixon to suggest that Blue was the most underpaid athlete in the nation.
Blue must have been listening. He started out asking for $115,000 for 1972. Finley started out by offering $50,000.
Since the talks began, Finley has upped his offer by $5,000, and Blue has dropped his demand below $100,000.
There are other absentees as well. Juan Marichal, the ace of the San Francisco staff, has yet to sign—and has yet to contact Giants' owner Horace Stone-

Judge Upholds Player Suspension in Big 10

"We can't get up for the little ones," sighed Maryland Coach Charles "Lefty" Driesell.
Fortunately, Lefty's 12th-ranked Terrapins got up after the intermission Tuesday night, outscored Richmond 10-2 in the opening four minutes of the second half and rolled to a 76-61 victory over the Spiders.
But collegiate basketball's biggest news of the day occurred not on the court but in one—in Minneapolis' U.S. District Court, to be precise—where Judge Earl Larson ruled that, unless the Big Ten Conference upholds the suspensions of Corky Taylor and Ron Behagen, the two Minnesota basketball players will be reinstated on the team.
The players were suspended by Minnesota and the Big Ten for their part in a brawl-marred game Jan. 25 between the Gophers and Ohio State.
Minnesota lifted the suspension three games later but the Big Ten maintained it and will conduct a hearing Thursday to decide the players' future.
"I hope we can get a fair hearing and get a chance to play again," said Behagen, who, along with Taylor, rejoined the Gophers Tuesday in practice for Saturday's key conference clash with Michigan. "Corky and I have been hurt," Behagen said, "but the team has been hurt more."

Richmond led 38-33 at the half before the host Terps, en route to their 19th victory in 22 games, went on their 10-2 tear, sparked by sophomore Tom McMillen, who scored 19 of his game-high 25 points in the second half.
Roger Hatcher scored 19 to lead the Spiders, 6-16.
In Tuesday night's other major action, Wisconsin rallied to whip Purdue 66-60 and Indiana raced away from Illinois 90-71 in Big Ten play; Southern Methodist ripped Texas Tech 87-73 and Texas A&M outlasted Baylor 101-95 in overtime in Southwest Conference play, and in a slowdown affair, Virginia Military edged William & Mary 37-35 in overtime.
Wisconsin blew a five-point halftime lead before Leon Howard, the Badgers' leading scorer with 16 points, sank two crucial field goals and a pair of free throws in the closing minutes to cool off the Boilermakers.
Indiana, with Jobie Wright scoring 26 points and John Ritter 23, posted its fifth straight Big Ten triumph, putting away Illinois in the opening minutes by streaking to a 21-9 lead.

SMU's Ruben Triplett led all scorers with 28 points, 14 of them at the free throw line, where the Mustangs hit 33 of 45 attempts to trip Tech.
Texas A&M, remaining in a tie atop the SWC with SMU, stalled its way to victory in the overtime against Baylor with Jeff Overhouse topping the Aggies with 22 points.
And VMI's Keydets, winning for the first time in 11 Southern Conference games, beat the Indians on a field goal with 1:28 to play by Bob Frank, the game's leading scorer with 12 points.
In other games, Texas topped Arkansas 92-86 in overtime on Harry Larrabee's six free throws in a 39-second span; Texas Christian outscored Rice 12-0 in the closing minutes for a 75-68 victory; Wichita State employed a torrid second-half fast break to run over Drake 95-71; Holy Cross withstood a second-half rally to beat St. John's, N.Y. 76-73, and a 16-point second-half scoring burst powered George Washington past East Carolina 84-74.

Many Entries Seen for SW Handicap

HOT SPRINGS, Ark. (AP)—A deluge of applications is expected for the $20,000 Southwest Handicap Saturday, the next major stepping stone toward the $100,000 Arkansas Derby, Oaklawn Park's racing secretary said Tuesday.
Secretary Allan "Doc" Lavin said that if the number of applications meets his expectation, the Saturday feature may be run in two divisions with high weights in one and low weights in the other.
The six-furlong event will be for 3-year-olds, as will the derby, which is run at 1 1/4 miles on the final day of the current 50-day season. The derby purse is double the amount offered last year.
Hempens Song, a classy filly, is among those expected for the Southwest Handicap. In two outings at Oaklawn this year, she has dispatched all-male competitors.
Most of her defeated opponents and some newcomers as well are expected for the handicap. Among the standout newcomers are Whitesburg, owned by Peter W. Salmen Jr., Sensitive Music, owned by Forrest H. Lindsay, and Elmer L. Brown, owned by Sara Mahan.
An unknown entity considered likely for the handicap is U Pos Ent, who recently scored an impressive victory over a distance of ground at Oaklawn.
Among others expected for the handicap are Gomer Evans' Lightning Lark, Robert Mitchell's Our Trade Winds, R. W. Driskell's Tudor Warrior, P. L. and C. T. Grissom's Billy Rogell.
Our Trade Winds came from dead last in a field of 14 to finish a fast-closing third against Hempens Song in the Hot Springs Handicap Feb. 12. Lightning Lark pressed the pace all the way in that race and finished second.
Salmen, who indicated he had high hopes for Whitesburg, remarked that the Oaklawn program was perfect for his plans. "It starts with shorter races and stretches out to the 1 1/4 mile Arkansas Derby. Then from there, the Bluegrass and on to Churchill Downs." Sensitive Music, shipped to Oaklawn from Tropical Park, has been training well here this season and Elmer L. Brown turned six furlongs in 1:13 in a morning workout here.

Bulls Wreck Philadelphia

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
Dick Motta, coach of the National Basketball Association's Chicago Bulls, takes great pleasure in the kind of shellacking his team handed Philadelphia Tuesday night when they wrecked the 76ers 119-88.
He figures everytime the Bulls beat the 76ers, it makes them a little more even for some of the things Philadelphia used to do to his club.
"I'd rather beat Philadelphia than any other team in the league," said Motta. "I remember when they used to beat us by 35 and 40 points and Jack Ramsay (Philadelphia's coach) used to get great delight from it."
Elsewhere in the NBA Tuesday, Boston downed Phoenix 114-103, New York took Portland 122-105, Buffalo edged Baltimore 99-98, Detroit squeezed by Los Angeles 135-134 in overtime and Golden State topped Seattle 120-104.
The Bulls raced to a 20-7 lead and coasted past Philadelphia with Bob Love tossing in 34 points to lead the attack. Motta stayed with his regulars and the lead bulged to 38 points before he went to his reserves.
"I didn't take my regulars out because I want to get the team used to working hard and not sloughing off with a comfortable lead," Motta said.
Bob Kauffman scored the last two of his 26 points by stealing an in-bound pass and driving in for Buffalo's winning basket against Baltimore.
The Braves trailed 93-85 with about four minutes left, then scored four straight baskets to tie it. Jack Marin's basket and a foul shot by Archie Clark restored a three-point Baltimore edge with 27 seconds to play but Kauffman hit on a rebound and then scored the winner for Buffalo.

Sot More in Spa Feature

HOT SPRINGS, Ark. (AP)—Sot More, winless in two earlier outings, heads a field of 10 entered in today's $8,500 feature race at Oaklawn Park here.
The allowance test for 3-year-olds and up will be at 5 1/2 furlongs.
Sot More, owned by Gus Blass, is trained by Doug Davis Jr. and will carry 120 pounds, including jockey Phil Grimm.
Also to carry 120 pounds, including jockey Louis Spindler, is Singing Jinn, owned by Billy J. Belford.
Sot More finished a good second to Line City in a 5 1/2 furlong feature at Oaklawn Park on Feb. 9. He was third to Bartley S. and Try My Way in his other race this year, also at 5 1/2 furlongs.
Others in today's field, all weighted at 117 pounds, and their riders are: Nearpoint, D.E. Whited; Gallan Mito, Pete Glenn; Everett's Last, John L. Lively; Schlissel, Eddie Burns; Minni Singer, Lonnie Ray; All Dancer, Mike Brumfield; Grey Tune, Anthony Rini; and Fast Thaw, with no jockey named.
Ray took over the lead in victories with two in Tuesday's races and Lively also scored a double win.
In Tuesday's feature, the odds-on favorite, Mitos Bolero, made up six lengths in the stretch and won by three over Princess Profit and Amirked in the $8,500, mile and 70-yard event.
The 4-year-old gelding paid $3.20, $2.80 and $2.60.

MIAMI (AP) — Miami's Hurricanes agreed Tuesday to a three-game football series with the University of Tampa, a small college power that thrashed the Hurricanes the last time they met.
Athletic Director Ernie McCoy said Miami would meet the Spartans Nov. 11 this year and follow with games Sept. 28, 1974 and Oct. 13, 1979. All were scheduled for Tampa Stadium.
BOWIE, Md. (AP) — The twice-postponed Barbara Fritchie Handicap has been canceled this year, Bowie Race Course officials disclosed Tuesday.
Larry Abbundi, racing secretary, said that after two attempts to hold the $50,000-added stakes, and considering the absence of a good spot on the remaining class here, it would not be rescheduled in 1972.
OAKLAND (AP) — Philadelphia Flyers goalie Bruce Gamble, hospitalized following a heart attack Feb. 9, is scheduled to go home Sunday.
"I feel real good," Gamble said Tuesday at Merritt Hospital, "but I'll just have to rest through the summer."
BUENOS AIRES (AP) — Carlos Monzon, the world's middleweight boxing champion, will leave today for Italy where he will have a 15-round title fight with Denny Moyer of the United States March 4 in Rome's Sports Palace.

Farm Income Is Spiraling

By DON KENDALL
AP Farm Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — Agriculture Department officials, already predicting 1972 net farm income at a record high, are reportedly considering revising this year's income estimate upward even further.

According to sources Tuesday at the National Agricultural Outlook Conference, the farm-income picture is looking even brighter than the estimated $15 billion to $2 billion gain already indicated.

At a boost of $2 billion, net farm income would hit a record $17.7 billion this year, surpassing the old mark of $17.1 billion set in 1947. Now, the sources said, Secretary of Agriculture Earl L. Butz is considering revising the estimate upward to as much as $18.3 billion.

There was no official indication of such a move, November in opening-day speeches at the annual outlook conference. Butz spoke at length, as he has before, on the Nixon administration's goal for higher farm income and how it would be a mistake for the government to put price curbs on raw agricultural products.

Butz also continued a barrage in support of currently high cattle prices and overruled consumer contentions that "steak at $1.99 a pound" is too high. Even at that price, he said, housewives compete against each other to buy it.

"There's always a steak there in the supermarket when you go down to buy one, and it doesn't pile up," Butz said. "It moves out."

On farm income, Rex F. Daly, an Economics Research Service analyst, cited earlier estimates to $15 billion to $2 billion for gains this year.

However, Daly also told the conference that net income "may total 10 to 15 per cent" above 1971, when the net was $15.7 billion. At the higher 15 per cent range, that could mean 1972 net income of more than $18.1 billion.

Exports, vital to the U.S. farm economy, are expected to total a value of $7.4 billion for the fiscal year ending June 30, said Raymond A. Ioanes, administrator of the Foreign Agricultural Service. The previous record was $7.8 billion in 1970-71.

Reduced shipments and lower prices for wheat and feed grain are expected to account for much of the reduction. Ioanes estimated wheat exports will be about 575 million bushels this fiscal year, compared with 739 million in 1970-71.

Other estimates included:
—Feed grain exports, at 19.7

million tons last season, are expected to be about 1 million less this fiscal year, he said.

—Rice exports are expected to total about 37.5 million hundredweight, milled basis, approximately unchanged. Oilseeds and their products, mostly soybeans, will set another fiscal year record at an estimated $2.124 billion, up from $2.065 billion last season, he said.

—Cotton sales overseas this fiscal year are estimated at slightly more than three million bales, down from 3.7 million in 1970-71, mainly because of scarcer supplies.

—Tobacco shipments are expected to drop to 550 million pounds from 584 million last fiscal year.

Young RFK Tells of Experience

By HARRY DUNPHY
Associated Press Writer
ADEN, South Yemen (AP) — "It wasn't the worst moment of my life," said young Joe Kennedy after his release by Arab plane hijackers Tuesday. "I've been scared before, but it never lasted as long."

For 18 hours Kennedy, the eldest son of the late Sen. Robert F. Kennedy, and 117 other male passengers were held aboard a commandeered German jumbo jet parked on a runway at sweltering Aden airport. Five Palestinian hijackers had rigged the plane with explosives before it landed.

Women and children and one elderly man were released hours before the male passengers, and those who didn't wait for their husbands were flown to Beirut to be picked up there today by a flight to Frankfurt.

Lufthansa, the West German airline, sent another 707 jet to Aden to pick up the rest of the passengers. It was due in Frankfurt tonight.

But the 16 crew members remained hostages aboard the plane. The hijackers' demands were not made public, but British Ambassador Arthur Kellas said there were indications they want Arabs held in West Germany released. Diplomats in Beirut said they had reports they were demanding the release of four Palestinians on trial in Cairo for the assassination of Premier Wasfi Tell of Jordan.

Yemeni authorities informed the British ambassador that there was no question of the plane being blown up. The government also was reported determined that the hijackers would not force the crew to fly them out of Aden.

"This is too much," said 19-year-old Joseph P. Kennedy III as he entered the airport lounge, looking tired and ruffled.

He said he talked briefly with one of the five armed hijackers, but "there was something of a language barrier."

Apparently the hijackers did not know he was aboard at first. But then one of them walked by late Tuesday afternoon and said: "Hello, Mr. Kennedy," it was reported.

Young Kennedy spoke by telephone with his uncle, Sen.

Edward M. Kennedy, in Washington. His mother, Ethel Kennedy, told newsmen she was "relieved and heartened" at the news of her son's release but added: "I'll feel better when I see him right here. I will be happiest when he gets home."

In Beirut, a Lebanese Cabinet minister said he had information that the hijackers didn't know young Kennedy would be aboard the plane. "He was not the target," said Public Works Minister Kamal Khoury. "In fact, the hijackers may have released all the men passengers because he was among them."

Five other Americans were among the passengers: Mr. and Mrs. Harrison Munday of El Segundo, Calif.; Margarethe Horn, a Vietnam war widow from Los Angeles, and her 2-month-old son Richard, and James Wallace of Elm Grove, Wis., a Peace Corps worker in India going home to see his ailing mother.

Mrs. Munday said she had tried to remain in the plane with her husband but a member of the British Embassy staff advised her to leave.

Mrs. Horn, whose husband was killed in a plane crash in Laos, told newsmen: "I simply closed my eyes and prayed."

"When they took over the plane, I thought something awful was going to happen. Every one got more and more scared as we approached Aden and the hijackers planted explosives near the emergency exits."

"The hijackers looked quite ordinary, innocent young men, but they carried pistols and grenades in their hands and they told us not to cause any trouble."

"They said they were patriots who wanted to free their country from Israel and no one would stand in their way."

The Lufthansa jet was seized early Tuesday an hour after taking off from New Delhi for Europe.

The hijackers said they were members of the Zionist Occupation Victims Organization, with headquarters in the Israeli-occupied Gaza Strip.

Stuttgart Orders Firm Discipline

STUTTGART, Ark. (AP)—The Stuttgart School Board issued a policy statement Tuesday endorsing firm disciplinary action against disruptive pupils, and the statement was supported Tuesday night by about 800 persons, roughly 75 of them black.

The 800 met in a Stuttgart auditorium and heard about the policy statement, which said: "It shall be the policy of the Stuttgart School Board that the Stuttgart schools shall be conducted in an atmosphere conducive to education—and that this policy shall be enforced with all tools at the command of the school district, including the prosecution of those individuals and/or students which disrupt the orderly operation of the school system and educational process."

Through comments and applause, those at the meeting indicated support for the policy statement, which was issued in the wake of class dismissals Monday because of racial tension.

Classes were scheduled to resume in Stuttgart today. The dismissal Monday came after several hundred white students held an assembly instead of going to their first classes of the day. The assembly was used to express complaints that some black students used vulgarity in the school, ran in hallways, threatened other students and teachers, and ganged up on some students.

During the meeting Tuesday night, one black woman told the group, "Whatever our children are, we made them at home...We get so busy sometimes, we just about let them run our house. We need to go back to raising our children and then we will have a better school system."

She was the only black who spoke out at the meeting. She said she had seven children. The crowd applauded her remarks.

Arthur Macom, attorney for the board, read the policy statement. He said that under Arkansas law, disruption of a school carries a minimum penalty of a $200 fine or six months in jail or both.

Bus Review Refused

WASHINGTON (AP)—The U.S. Supreme Court refused Tuesday to review a decision by the 8th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals at St. Louis ordering extensive busing to achieve a racial balance in the public schools of Little Rock.

The plan requires cross-town busing, including some trips up to about 15 miles and of nearly one hour's duration, to achieve a balance in grades six through 12.

Attorneys for the Little Rock School Board had called the plan an "educational absurdity."

Taking the Lead Out

WASHINGTON (AP) — Reporting the lead content in the air of 27 cities already has passed the danger point, the Environmental Protection Agency has proposed reducing the lead content of gasoline starting in 1974.

In addition, proposals outlined Tuesday by EPA head William D. Ruckelshaus would require refineries to provide at least one grade of unleaded gasoline at all large service stations by July 1, 1974.

The schedule for reducing the lead content of premium and regular gasoline would begin with a two-grams-per-gallon limit on July 1, 1974; then drop to 1.7 grams per gallon in 1975; 1.5 in 1976; and finally to 1.25 on Jan. 1, 1977.

Present lead levels are about 2.5 grams per gallon.

The proposals also would require that a leaded gas be colored and unleaded clear, as is now the practice, and that some auto gas tanks and pump dispensers be made to prevent the discharge of leaded gasoline into cars designed only for unleaded.

EPA would have authority to assess fines of up to $10,000 per day on refiners, distributors or stations violating the regulations.

To The Editor

This is your newspaper. Write to it. Address letters to: Editor The Star, P.O. Box 640, Hope, Ark. 71801. All letters must be signed, with address so you are identified to the newspaper staff, but if the character of the letter permits we will allow use of a pen-name in the publication, in which case you should add "Citizen," or some other word below your real name and address.

Appreciates Help

Editor The Star: We would like to thank you for running the announcements in your newspaper concerning a meeting which we held in Hope recently, at which we discussed the possibility of starting a Lutheran Church in Hope.

"We appreciate so much that you were willing to give our meeting so much publicity. We likewise appreciate the publicity given by Radio Station KXAR. "We particularly appreciate the hospitality of First Presbyterian Church, where our meeting was held. And we surely appreciate the courtesy and friendliness of their pastor, the Rev. James E. Sewell, and of the Rev. Father W. H. Risinger of St. Mark's Episcopal Church, both of whom attended the meeting and personally extended an invitation to the Lutherans to begin work in Hope.

"We will keep you posted, as further plans are developed.

"Again, thank you for your help." Yours sincerely,

Enemy Makes 37 More Attacks

SAIGON (AP) — Communist forces made 37 more attacks against government troops across South Vietnam and shelled the big U.S. Army Support Command in the central coastal city of Qui Nhon, wounding four Americans, military authorities reported today.

Most of the attacks appeared to be of the small-scale, hit-and-run variety and about half were by rockets and mortars, which has been the pattern since the latest surge of enemy activity began last Saturday.

Incomplete reports said 19 South Vietnamese were killed and 76 wounded during the 24-hour reporting period ending at 6 a.m. today. The Saigon command claimed 158 North Vietnamese and Viet Cong troops were killed in scattered fighting.

In three major assaults, the North Vietnamese and Viet Cong killed 15 South Vietnamese and wounded 19, field reports said. Enemy losses in the assaults were not known.

The four U.S. soldiers were wounded when seven mortar rounds hit the Support Command headquarters shortly before midnight and damaged some buildings.

In the air war, Air Force F4 escorts bombed antiaircraft runs inside North Vietnam Tuesday after the guns fired on an unarmed reconnaissance plane about 45 miles north of the demilitarized zone, the U.S. Command said. The results of the bombing were not known and the U.S. aircraft were not damaged, a spokesman added.

The command said it was the 63rd protective reaction strike inside North Vietnam this year.

PERSONAL FINANCE

By CARLTON SMITH

The life insurance industry is neglecting the working wife, and vice versa.

What amounts almost to a revolution has occurred in the past several years as married women hung up their aprons and joined the ranks of the employed, alongside their husbands, as breadwinners. More than four out of 10 are now classified as "in the labor force," and one working wife in five (full time) earns as much as her husband, or more.

All this has affected profoundly the social economics of the family, and in particular its thinking about the role of life insurance in its financial security program. Until fairly recently, most families were entirely dependent for survival on the earning power of a single person—the husband.

Financial security meant insuring the life, or the earning power, of the husband—and that's where the emphasis has traditionally been placed, both by families that had their heads on straight, and by the people selling insurance. The insurance industry still clings firmly to that concept, in the main, largely ignoring the changed circumstances of the working-wife family.

Dr. Starr Roxanne Hiltz, a sociologist, has twitted the insurance people about this in one of their own more thoughtful publications, the "CLU Journal." Where the wife contributes substantially to family income support, she says:

"The family has different needs, values and payment capabilities... than the family in which the husband earns most or all of the income. Yet, for the most part, the life insurance industry has not recognized the working wife as constituting any different type of market than housewives in general."

And the working-wife family, in turn, has neglected the insurance industry. Dr. Hiltz cites surveys indicating that these families carry less life insurance, proportionate to income, than "housewife families." There is no longer the feeling, of course, that the death of the husband would mean the impoverishment of his survivors, since the woman is a capable breadwinner. Thus these families tend to regard insurance as chiefly useful for cleaning up death expenses.

Yet the working-wife family has its own security needs, Dr. Hiltz observes. Its style of life, its expectations of financing the educa-

Credit Cards, Checks Way of Life

By JOHN CUNIFF
AP Business Analyst
NEW YORK (AP) — In the world of personal finance and investments there are innumerable assumptions so taken for granted that for years they remain unquestioned.

During this time they become the basis of theories, are offered as proof in arguments and are acted upon, sometimes successfully. A rumor, for example, sometimes has the same stock market effect as a fact.

Generally, however, false information is costly to the user, so see if you can determine which of these statements is accurate:

—If you use credit cards the chances are you won't have to use as many checks as before because your card will serve as a substitute.

It appears to be true, but experience doesn't back it up. A study by Georgia Tech for the Federal Reserve Bank of Atlanta tends to show a correlation between the number of checks written and credit cards used.

The study indicates that as gross income increases for a family so does the use of cards—and so also does the use of checks.

Four billion checks were written in 1941, when credit cards were rather insignificant. Twenty-three billion were written last year, and banking officials are becoming quite concerned as they foresee 40 billion by 1980.

—The median price of new one-family houses keeps rising every year.

This seems to be so, but an important asterisk should be noted. The fact is that in 1970 the median price actually fell to $23,400 from $25,600 in 1969. That appears to be a good-size decline, especially during inflation.

But there was a reason. Many builders fearing they might price their product out of the market therefore reduced the size. The median price was indeed smaller, but so was the size of the median house.

—The median in which interest is compounded can make a big difference in a short time for small savers.

That's what you hear, but it may not be what you get. After two years of depositing $25 a month at 5 per cent, for example, you would have $629.07 with daily compounding, $628.39 with annual compounding.

Compounding works its magic over extended periods, when the interest begets interest. But over the short-term it really doesn't make itself very visible for small savers.

—Most families now have a savings account.

That appears to be the case. The Survey Research Center at the University of Michigan found in 1970 that nearly two-thirds of all families had accounts and that the median holding—half above, half below—was $1,300.

But if families have been saving at a rate of more than 8 per cent of take-home pay shouldn't the figures be even higher? It would, after all, take only two years to save that amount on a take-home pay of $8,500.

Bareheaded Pat Views Acupuncture Case

By FRANK CORMIER
Associated Press Writer

PEKING (AP) — Bare-headed as usual, Pat Nixon braved a North China snowstorm today to visit an agricultural commune where she mingled with schoolchildren, observed winter time cultivation of vegetables and saw a 68-year-old woman getting an acupuncture treatment.

The First Lady walked through intermittently heavy snow that glistened in her hair, moving down alleys and across furrowed fields at the 6,000-acre Evergreen People's Commune west of Peking.

Mrs. Nixon was captivated by the schoolchildren she saw, marveled at the growing of out-of-season vegetables under glass and even tried futilely to make friends with a rather dirty hog.

She seemed most surprised, however, to observe in the commune clinic the ancient Chinese medical treatment based on the insertion of long needles into the flesh.

The two young women who gave the treatment told Mrs. Nixon that they attend to about a dozen patients a day. They showed her a gray-haired woman lying on her side on a cot with more than half a dozen needles protruding from her right arm and leg.

The woman said those limbs had been so numb before she began a week-long series of acupuncture treatments that she could hardly walk around her small home. Now she can cook, she reported.

"We wish you well," Mrs. Nixon told her.

The pig Mrs. Nixon tried to entice within petting distance was corralled outside a tiny, spottily clean cottage.

Warned by a reporter that the pig might bite, Mrs. Nixon said she lived on a farm as a girl and "I once raised a prize-winner—second prize."

But the pig ignored her entreaties, and finally she leaned into the sty to throw him a chunk of cabbage.

Almost everything Mrs. Nixon saw at the commune—except acupuncture—reminded her of something back home.

Visiting two classrooms—second-grade multiplication and a music class with a simple but melodic organ—recalled her days as a schoolteacher.

Is now the time to refinance loans?

Carson May Move

By LINDA DEUTSCH
Associated Press Writer

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Johnny Carson, the superstar of late night television, says it's "99.9 per cent sure" he'll move his "Tonight" show headquarters from New York to Hollywood this spring.

Official announcement of the move was expected from NBC today, sources said, and the show's personnel have been notified.

"The talent pool is out here now," Carson said in an interview Tuesday. "That's the basic reason for the change... We'll have better access to people. We use up a lot of talent in our show every night."

Carson, who took over as host of the variety-talk show 10 years ago, noted that "in the last few years there has been a gradual change; almost all television production has changed location to the West Coast." Performers moved with the shows, and Carson's pool of possible guests diminished.

"Beides, change is good for a show like ours," he said. "We've been in New York for 10 years. A change will give the show a shot and get our people up."

About 20 key members of the Carson team, including announcer Ed McMahon and band leader Doc Severinsen, will make the cross-country hop, probably in May, Carson said. And NBC will build a special Carson annex at its Burbank studios, reportedly at a cost of $1.5 million.

Carson said he's negotiating an NBC contract to run through April 1974.

Carson has been the champ in the 11:30 p.m. to 1 a.m. spot for 10 years, and he said he won't change now.

"People criticize me for not getting into controversial issues," he said. "I haven't gone that route, although it would be easy to do... The track record shows that people don't watch it...."

"I put my show in the entertainment category," Carson, who estimates his show reaches 25 million to 30 million viewers per week, added, "Movie personalities

No Religion Violation

LITTLE ROCK (AP)—Chicopee Manufacturing Co. of North Little Rock did not violate the religious freedom of Otis Kittell by firing him for refusing to work on Saturdays, Judge G. Thomas Eisele of U.S. District Court ruled Tuesday.

Kittell said he was a member of the Radio Church of God and that the denomination holds that the Sabbath falls between sundown Friday and sundown Saturday. He said members of the sect were forbidden to work during that period.

He was a pipefitter at Chicopee, which makes nonwoven fabrics.

have a great deal more latitude to take stands than TV personalities who are in people's homes every night... People become very intimately involved with someone who is on this late at night."

A few times each year, he'll take the show back to New York for visits and a taste for seasonal change. He's still fond of Manhattan.

"It will be great to get back each autumn," Carson said, "when the city really starts clicking."

To the Japanese, banzai means "10,000 years; forever."

The standard deduction is up this year. But maybe you should itemize.

Your best buddy Lenny might have told you to itemize your deductions because it would save you more tax dollars.

Your neighbor possibly suggested taking the standard deduction because you'd pay less taxes that way.

And Frank down at the office... he helps everybody with their return... what did Frank recommend?

If there's some way to save you money on your income tax, H & R Block will know how to do it.

Itemized and standard deductions are nothing new. We've been preparing returns for years using both. We'll figure out your situation both ways and then prepare your return using the method that's best for you.

You see, for only a few dollars more than it costs to do it yourself (with advice maybe from some other amateur), you can have your tax return prepared with complete confidentiality by a specially trained member of the H & R Block team. There are thousands of them in over 6,000 conveniently located offices.

Each member of H & R Block is warm, friendly and anxious to help you. A visit to H & R Block usually takes just a short time. Once in our office, you sit down over a free cup of coffee and possibly learn things about your income tax that you never knew existed. Things that we know, because income tax returns are our only business.

H & R Block's fees start at $5 and the average cost was under $12.50 for over 7 million families we served last year.

Furthermore, if your return is audited we will accompany you, at no extra cost, to the Internal Revenue Service and explain how your return was prepared, even though we will not act as your legal representative.

It means that H & R Block also offers you year 'round tax service for just one low fee, with no extra charge for audits and estimates.

Yes, it's true. The standard deduction is up this year.

It's one of the many things we'll consider when we do your return.

DON'T LET AN AMATEUR DO H&R BLOCK'S JOB.

Big Mac Poses Puzzle

DENVER (AP) — Big Mac is a beautiful animal. But is he a black Angus... or a snow white, three-quarter Charolais named "Jeep?"

That's the question that has rocked the elite National Western Stock Show.

Big Mac, a 1,250-pound steer, was named grand champion of the 1972 stock show in January. He was solid black.

Some claim the steer was dyed black to meet the show's requirements, limited to English breeds of Angus, Hereford and Shorthorn.

The question of the steer's origin has caused the $14,250 which McDonald's Systems Hamburgers paid for Big Mac after the show to be held up. The restaurant chain paid a record $11.40 a pound for the animal.

Willard Simms, general manager of the stock show, says blood tests may clear up the controversy when they become available, probably later this week. He said the exhibitors would have to provide a clear title to the animal, back to its origin.

Rex Miller, 16-year-old son of Eldon Miller of Alta, Iowa, showed the steer here at the National Western.

Simms said that when a protest was raised over the eligibility of Big Mac to enter the show as an Angus, young Miller "volunteered that he darkened it to make it uniform in color." The practice of touching up animals has been accepted by show officials but now Simms says there will be no alteration of color "in any way" at future shows.

Young Miller signed a stock show affidavit that the sire, which determines the breed, was an Angus, and said that the steer's dam was a Short-horn-Charolais.

Ray Daves, foreman of the large Packard Cattle Co. ranch near Limon, Colo., said, however, that the steer was Jeep, an animal raised by his son Kirk.

Daves said it was a "snow white three-quarter-blood Charolais, not an Angus, without any doubt."

Discipline Was Cause

MANSFIELD, Ark. (AP)—The contract of Supt. Albert Whiley will not be renewed because of failure to discipline pupils, Cecil Newman, president of the Mansfield School Board, said Tuesday.

Whiley has held the $10,800-a-year job for almost seven years. His contract expires June 30, 1973.

Newman said the board voted 4-1 against renewal of the contract.

Whiley could not be reached for comment.

Newman said Whiley had failed to notify authorities about undesirable individuals loitering around the high school, that basketball games sometimes were delayed because drunks wandered onto the basketball court and that other disruptive incidents had taken place.

Shown above are participants in a planning session for a landscape short course. They are from left to right: Mrs. Royce Weisenberger, Mrs. James Black, Pauline Walker, Mrs. Ralph Montgomery, Mrs. David Waddle, Robert Vandivere, and Calvin Caldwell.

We have received numerous requests for information on all phases of landscaping and thought perhaps a landscape short course would help answer a lot of questions, said County Extension Agent Calvin Caldwell.

The planning group worked with the extension agents in setting up four landscape sessions. All sessions will be held in the Extension Conference Room, 1st floor of the County Courthouse. The sessions and dates are as follows:

Session 1: Tuesday, February 29, 1:00-2:45 p.m., the subject will be on all phases of lawns.

Session 2: Thursday, March 2,

1:00-2:45 p.m., Selection of trees and shrubs and how they fit into the design process will be discussed.

Session 3: Tuesday, March 7, 1:00-2:45 p.m. The topic will include care of shrubs and trees. This will include pruning, watering, fertilizing and disease and insect control.

Session 4: Thursday, March 9, 1:00-2:45 p.m. The discussion will be on patios, walks, drives and the use of materials in landscaping.

Anyone interested in learning about landscaping is urged to attend the County Agent said.

Scott, Jackson Up for Oscars Again

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Glenda Jackson and George C. Scott, who won Academy Awards last year, are nominees again as the best movie actress and actor.

Scott, who refused the Oscar he won in 1971 for the title role in "Patton," was nominated Tuesday for his role as a cynical doctor in "Hospital." Miss Jackson won as the best actress in a leading role last year for "Women in Love." She's nominated this time for "Sunday Bloody Sunday."

There was no immediate word on reaction from Scott about the new nomination.

He refused to accept his Academy Award last year after calling the Oscar presentations a "meat parade."

All 10 supporting actors and actresses nominated are first-time nominees, an Academy first.

Winners will receive their Oscars on April 10.

The Academy nominated as best picture of 1971 "Fiddler on the Roof," "The French Connection," "The Last Picture Show," all three of which shared the most nominations, "Nicholas and Alexandra" and "A Clockwork Orange."

The only American nominated for best leading actress is Jane Fonda, who played a prostitute in "Kluge." Miss Jackson and the other nominees—Julie Christie for "McCabe and Mrs. Miller," Vanessa Redgrave for "Mary, Queen of Scots," and Janet Suzman for "Nicholas and Alexandra"—are British.

Nominated with Scott as best leading actor were Peter Finch, "Sunday Bloody Sunday," Walter Matthau, "Kotch," Gene Hackman "The French Connection," and Topol, "Fiddler on the Roof."

The Academy nominated as best director Stanley Kubrick, "A Clockwork Orange," Norman Jewison, "Fiddler on the Roof," William Friedkin, "The French Connection," Peter Bogdanovich, "The Last Picture Show," and John Schlesinger, "Sunday Bloody Sunday."

Supporting actresses nominated: Ellen Burstyn and Cloris Leachman, both for "The Last Picture Show;" Barbara Harris, "Who Is Harry Kellerman, And Why Is He Saying Those Terrible Things About Me?;" Margaret Leighton, "The Go Between," and Ann Margret, "Carnal Knowledge."

Supporting actor nominees: Jeff Bridges and Ben Johnson, both for "The Last Picture Show;" Leonard Frey, "Fiddler On The Roof;" Richard Jaeckel, "Sometimes A Great Notion;" and Roy Scheider, "The French Connection."

Frigid Air Sweeps Much of Nation

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
Frigid arctic air swept into the Northeast today, bringing subzero cold to northern New England and upstate New York.

Cold wave warnings were in effect from Massachusetts to New Jersey and for areas of West Virginia. The cold air extended southward into the mid-Atlantic Coast states and across the Midwest to the Great Plains.

Rain, snow and freezing rain broke out over much of the Midwest. Travel warnings were issued for Iowa and from northern Illinois into Wisconsin and Minnesota.

Snow fell on Minnesota, the Dakotas, most of Montana and parts of Oregon.

Rain extended from the central Gulf Coast to the southern Midwest, and occasional showers were reported over the northern and central Pacific Coast.

Temperatures before dawn ranged from 26 below zero at Massena, N.Y., to 67 at Fort Lauderdale and Key West, Fla., and Brownsville, Tex.

Some other reports: Anchorage 21 clear, Atlanta 38 clear, Boston 4 clear, Buffalo 4 partly cloudy, Chicago 27 cloudy, Cincinnati 23 partly cloudy, Cleveland 15 cloudy, Dallas 50 cloudy, Denver 40 clear, Detroit 18 cloudy, Honolulu 69 cloudy, Indianapolis 25 cloudy, Kansas City 33 rain, Los Angeles 54 partly cloudy, Louisville 29 cloudy, Miami 65 cloudy, Minneapolis-St. Paul 14 partly cloudy, Nashville 35 cloudy, New York 13 clear, Philadelphia 12 clear, Phoenix 63 partly cloudy, Pittsburgh 12 clear, St. Louis 31 rain, San Francisco 53 cloudy, Seattle 39 clear, Washington 25 clear.

Day in Life of New China

By HUGH A. MULLIGAN
AP Special Correspondent
PEKING (AP) — One day in the life of a New China Hand: Well, what do you know, it's dawn and already the people of the People's Republic of China are on the rooftops and in the streets doing calisthenics. The 6 a.m. news in Chinese mentions the names President Nixon and Premier Chou En-lai several times in a 15-minute broadcast that is immediately followed by an exercise program done by the numbers to revolutionary martial music.

Peking is up and doing by the time President Nixon leaves the government guest house for his morning meeting with the Chinese premier at the Great Hall of the People. The women sweeping the streets with their long brooms scarcely notice the U.S. President behind the dark drawn curtains of his red flag limousine, a massive black vehicle that looks like the love child of an aging Rolls-Royce and 1959 Buick Special.

In a country of 800 million you wonder where everybody is. The Chinese capital that Marco Polo seven centuries ago called the greatest city in the world lacks the teeming life of a modern Asian metropolis. Traffic along the broad boulevards is a whisper of bicycles and trolley buses and a few horn-honking Shanghai-brand green sedans, which look like Checker cabs. Peking is a city where you seldom see a television antenna, a flock of sparrows, a girl wearing make-up or a dress. Juke boxes are nonexistent, and pianos almost as rare since party Chairman Mao Tse-tung remodeled the musical scene and decided: "In our world the piano is not required."

Pig tails and top knots went out of style long ago. Girls wear their hair braided in two long locks or cut short in a non-nonsense mannish coiffure, and everywhere, even at the ballet, they effect the unisex boiler suit popularized by the chairman.

Sparrows bit the dust several years ago by the millions when the whole society was organized against vermin and pests. People spent days on rooftops and trees beating drums and screaming their into constant frightened flight until they dropped from exhaustion, only to have hordes of destructive caterpillars thrive in the absence of their natural enemy.

Aside from the tiled roof palaces of the Forbidden City and what's left of the old city wall, Peking is a drab city of massive neo-Stalinist office buildings and depressing factories, communes and apartment complexes. In leveling away luxury and upgrading the city's poverty to just about subsistence level, the Communist reformers in two decades have come up with an architectural style best described as institutional grim.

"Why does socialism have to be so drab?" asks a pretty White House secretary. "You should have been here before the revolution," an old China hand advises her, "when the morgue truck made its rounds picking up the bodies of beggars who had died in the streets during the night."

Chairman Mao's poems and portraits are everywhere in billboard size, but James Reston of the New York Times might have trouble recognizing the city where he left his appendix last summer. The Anti-Imperialist Hospital where he made like a porcupine for the anesthetist has been renamed the Capital Hospital and a lot of the old anti-imperialist running dog invective has been removed for the Nixon visit.

Off the main drags, out of view of the Nixon motorcades, some of the more vituperative signs have been only lightly white washed over. The Chinese press guides and interpreters, however, go suddenly myopic when asked to translate the characters showing through, just as they pull up lame and halt at the language barrier when asked an embarrassing question, such as what ever became of Lin Biao, once groomed as Mao's successor but missing from the Politburo since last June.

Big Wedding Event Is Shaping at Bodcaw

A big wedding is shaping up at Bodcaw. It will be womanless affair and the wedding party will consist of some 25 fashionably attired 'ladies' and gentlemen.

The lovely bride is the Rev. Robert Davis, a petite 50-50-50, the daughter of Joe Dillard and Lloyd Baker. The groom, handsome Harry Stephens, is the son of Joe Dickey and Chester Daniels.

A noted soloist, one of the "Happy Goodwins", Thomas Jefferson Jr. has flown in on Broom Flip-Flop Airlines from Brockman Hill. This lovely couple will be united in total confusion by the Rev. Joe Daniels.

Following the wedding local talent will perform and over 40 door prizes will be given away.

The event of the social season will take place in the Bodcaw School Gym at 7:30 p.m. on Friday, February 25. Bud Daniels of Helena will be master of ceremonies and admission is 25 and 50 cents.

DR. LAWRENCE E. LAMB

Hold Off Surgery After Heart Attack

By Lawrence Lamb, M.D.

Dear Dr. Lamb — I am a man of middle age. Recently, I had a heart attack. How long must I wait to have my teeth repaired?

Dear Reader — There is no set rule. It depends on the recovery a person makes after a heart attack and the nature of the dental work.

Many years ago I did a study on the risk patients had from the standpoint of a variety of surgical procedures, many of them major operations. In looking at several hundred cases even an old heart attack did not preclude major surgery.

As a rule, it is well to wait for at least three months after initial recovery from a heart attack before having any significant surgical procedures. If you allow approximately a month and a half for initial recovery, we are talking about postponing surgery for about five months.

Most dental work really doesn't pose much threat to the body. Your dentist will need to know about your medicines. Some medicines used to prevent pain during dental procedures can cause some problems in highly sensitive individuals, but allowing the patient to have the pain sometimes causes just as much danger.

Another point that will need to be considered is whether you are on medicines to prevent blood clotting (anticoagulants) which are commonly given to patients after they have had a heart attack.

Dear Dr. Lamb — I have a blood pressure problem and it goes up and down. I have heard this kind is worse than if it stays up all the time. Is this true? Is my chance of having a stroke or heart attack better than most. I am taking medicine for it and my nerves. I am also overweight and on a diet to lose, and am doing as I am told. Three heart tracings were normal. Please let me know the facts on my condition. My highest reading has been 185 over 110.

Dear Reader — Individuals who intermittently have normal or near normal blood pressures and other times have high blood pressure are usually better off than those people who have sustained high blood pressure. Lots of the fluctuations in blood pressure can be related to life situations and tensions — sometimes even the aspect of having the blood pressure taken.

The fact that your blood pressure is at the level you state and still fluctuates apparently to considerably lower levels would suggest that you are less likely to have a stroke than individuals with sustained high blood pressure. One of the best things you can do is to lose excess weight, so I am pleased to hear that you are doing so.
